NASA scientist in India to find his nanny Is this the first in a new series on Netflix? It would make sense after the new release of Into The Wild Yes, I was looking for a science-fiction connection between Into the Wild and this new show. What do you think? INTO THE WILD, A wild ride Into the Wild is a David vs. Goliath story that follows a young man (played by Emile Hirsch) who goes on a journey to become the ultimate 'American Dream'. During his journey he must navigate the pitfalls of life in the wilderness, family drama, an alcoholic father, a homeless mother, and a brush with death. Written and directed by Sean Penn and starring Emile Hirsch, Ed Harris, Catherine Keener, and Anthony Edwards, it's easy to see why this film was such a surprise hit. With over 20 million views on YouTube and over 90 awards in Cannes, including best film, best director, and best actor, the story of Charlie (Emile Hirsch), his relationship with his alcoholic father (Ed Harris), and the confrontation with his mother (Catherine Keener) is definitely a compelling read. It is of course inspired by Chris McCandless, a real-life teenager who went into the Alaskan wilderness in 1992 and eventually starved to death. Through the years of research I have done on the story and what went on behind the scenes of this film, I have always found this story to be so much more compelling than the story of Chris, himself. There is so much more that happened, both in real life and in the film, than a 22-year-old went into the wilderness and eventually died. So, what does that mean in this movie? It means that it is a little difficult to pin down the science-fiction connection, but that doesn't mean it's not there. This movie has been pitched by Penn as a "Cadd 82157476af
